MARKET LEADING PROJECT MANAGEMENT PROFESSIONALS JOIN CBRE IN COLORADO

Denver – October 2, 2012 – CBRE, Inc. announced that Chris Squadra, Tim Brekel and Scott Brown, three of the region's top project and construction management professionals, have joined the Company's Denver office. The addition of these professionals further enhances the CBRE's service offerings in the Rocky Mountain region.

"CBRE Denver and Chris, Tim and Scott have worked closely together on a number of projects. Their addition to the CBRE team is consistent with our strategy of recruiting talent that will add complementary services in order to provide clients with comprehensive commercial real estate and project delivery solutions" said Ray Pittman, Senior Managing Director and Colorado Market Leader for CBRE.

The three previously worked at ARC Integrated Program Management, a leading project management firm. They each have extensive experience within the real estate, design, engineering and construction industries. Mr. Squadra will be Director of Program Management for CBRE in Denver while Mr. Brekel and Mr. Brown have been named Senior Program Managers.

"We are very pleased to be adding a team of professionals with longstanding client relationships and expertise in public sector, hospitality and transportation projects to enhance our project management teams in Colorado, the Western Division and CBRE Global Service Line," commented Brian Jaffe, Senior Managing Director, CBRE Project Management.

Mr. Squadra, Mr. Brekel and Mr. Brown's core business activities have included representation of both private and public sector clients with program and project management needs during planning, design, pre-construction, construction and post-construction. Each has experience in providing comprehensive facility operations and management services, allowing building owners and operators the ability to more effectively manage and maintain their property.

“These new professionals will be integrated with our existing business and the current high performing team we already have in place so that we will offer clients seamless execution across a broad spectrum,” said Mitch Blain, Director, CBRE Project Management, Denver. “The alignment of our cultures and areas of specialization are a perfect fit to round out our portfolio of capabilities.”

Mr. Squadra, who has been named the Director of Program Management for CBRE in Denver stated, “CBRE is the industry leader. They have a consistent focus on service excellence and a Project Management practice that is second to none. We will be able to deliver significant benefits to existing and new clients as we grow our business together.”
